Scientific developments in the field of Diabetes will be presented at the Central European Diabetes Congress, which will be organized in 2023 in Romania! International opinion leaders and Romanian experts will be present for three days at a central European congress dedicated to diabetes, held in a new approach.

We invite you to attend the 2023 Central European Diabetes Congress, the European scientific event that builds partnerships for the people with diabetes.

For three days you will be able to take part in scientific sessions of interest and you will be able to achieve a scientific networking organized for the first time in the form of ceremonies centered on topics of interest to you, with diabetes as the central theme.

The congresses organized by CEDA (Central European Diabetes Association) are platforms for scientific discussions in the field of diabetes that prioritize the exchange of experience at the international level and the interaction between participants.

The CEDA 2023 Congress in Bucharest combines all the elements of current science, to highlight the newest tools of practical diabetology. Are you a doctor and would you like to present a paper at the Central European Diabetes Congress? We invite you to submit the abstract of the work you wish to present. The topic of the paper must address a current topic in clinical diabetology. The five best abstracts will be awarded with prizes worth 500 euros/prize. The abstracts can be sent starting from January 25, 2023 and will be available at www.ceda2023.eu.

All accepted abstracts will be published in Diabetes, Stoffwechsel & Herz (Diabetes, Metabolism, and the Heart). For REGISTRATION, please visit www.ceda2023.eu.

As president of the local organizing committee, I cordially invite you and look forward to welcoming you to the CEDA 2023 Congress, which will be held for the first time in Bucharest-Romania between 8th-10th of June. Together with you we building partnerships at European level in diabetes!

With friendship,
